BARBOURVILLE, KY., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1919

ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS A YEAR IN ADVANCE

STARVED AND ROBBED ON WAY FROM WORK

Wednesday night occurred a highway robbery near the C. V. bridge, when A. F. Thompson, switchman, 34 years old, was held up by two negroes as he was nearing home from his work. He states that the two men followed him from some cars near the carnival grounds, across the bridge, down the embankment into the small patch of woods. Then they overtook him and grabbed him. In the engagement Thompson was fearfully stabbed and an ugly gash cut in his hand. One of the men put a knife to his neck, he says, and ordered him to be quiet or he would cut his head off. The other negro secured his purse and told his companion that he had the money. "Let's go," Thompson made his way to the home of Mr. J. W. Lunkins which was only a few yards away, and called a physician. His condition is critical, but he may recover. —Corbin Times.

Following the attack on Mr. Thompson citizens of Corbin got together, rounded up some five hundred negroes and ordered them to leave the city. Some of the negroes were put on trains and others were driven into the country. None of them, however, suffered bodily injury. The majority of these negroes were employed by the L. & N. on construction work.

PROF. B. C. LEWIS RESIGNS

We are sorry to announce the resignation of Prof. B. C. Lewis as principal of the High School, where he has been since the resignation of Prof. H. M. Oldfield about six weeks ago. Mr. Lewis will go to Harlan where he will be connected with the Kelley Hotel. His many friends wish him success.

TO HONOR OUR P. M.

Postmaster Anis of this city, is in line for a "Distinguished Service Pin" that may be conferred on him by a division of the United States Treasury Department.

This insignia of honor is a beautifully lettered gold pin, with a blue enamelled border, bearing the words "Distinguished Service, Treasury Department, Savings Division." The pin has the same intrinsic value as the distinguished Service Award of Congress.

The honor of wearing one of these pins is confined to the postmaster who causes to be sold between November 3rd and December 6th the quota of Treasury Savings Certificates allotted to his office.

In cities with a post office of the first class the quota is $5,000 of either the $100 or $1,000 Certificates. Second class offices should sell $4,000, third class $3,000 and fourth class offices $2,000.

The postmaster may also cause the honor to be shared by any attaché of his office, who will perform the service required. Thus the assistant, any carrier or clerk in an office of any class, who, with his chief's consent, may on the postmaster's request, receive one of the coveted trophies.

CHANGE IN THE TIMES FORCE

G. J. Humfleet, who has had charge of the Corbin Times the past year, will return to Middleboro with his family Nov. 1st, and accept a position on Three States. Galen E. Denham, who has been associated with him in the mechanical department of the Times, will go to Middleboro for a week and from there will go to Alamogordo, New Mexico, having accepted a position on the weekly Clouderoster, published at that place.

Mr. James J. Price will take charge of the Times for the present until permanent arrangements are completed. —Corbin Times.

LAMBLEN-WILSON

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wilson went to house-keeping this week in the Gragg residence, on Virginia Ave., which he recently purchased. Mrs. Wilson, before marriage, was Miss Clara Lambdin, and the young people were married October 15th at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lambdin, at Barbourville. —Pineville Sun.

Miss Clara has a host of friends in Barbourville and all will join the Advocate in wishing her a large portion of this world's good things.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Forest Gregory, the fifteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gregory, of Lily, was killed last Saturday by passenger train No. 37 at Lily when the girl was struck by the steps of the tank as the train pulled into the depot. She was coming to the depot to board the train to come to Corbin and had to cross the track. She succeeded in crossing, but fell just as she crossed, and when she raised her head the iron steps struck her on the right side of the face. She was picked up by the trainmen unconscious and brought to Dr. Parker's office here, where she died Sunday morning after terrible suffering. The remains were taken to Lily Sunday for burial. —Corbin Times.

THIS ORCHARD PAID

When J. G. W. Smith a few days ago commissioned a Lowell, Ark., banker to invest $10,000 for him in his fruit in Treasury savings Certificates and Liberty Bonds, a story of success under depressing circumstances unfolded.

Smith, several years ago bought a farm for $5,000 making a small payment down and giving his note for the balance. It was not long until he found the farm had been sold to him on misrepresentation. He could not evade the sale however, and so he planted an orchard.

The note fell due before the orchard came into bearing, however, but his showing got an extension on the paper.

Last month the farm, with the fine young orchard, sold for $18,000, not including this year's apple crop, which brought another $5,000.

J. H. Black, machinery salesman, who has been out of town for several days has returned.

GOVERNOR EDWIN P. MORROW

G. O. P. ELECTS
KENTUCKY GOVERNOR
RETURNS SHOW VICTORY FOR ENTIRE STATE TICKET
Majority More Than 35,000

Not even the most optimistic Republican had the temerity to believe in the majority which swept Edwin P. Morrow and the whole State ticket into office. Like us by a blitzard of the west, the Democrats were literally snowed under, the majority for the Republicans in a normally Democratic State running between 25,000 and 35,000.

The majorities by districts were, seven for Morrow and four for Black. The Eleventh District, known as the Mountain District, of which Knox County is a part, gave Morrow almost double the majority of any other district, this majority being 17,137 with some places yet to hear from. The next greatest majority was in the Fifth which gave a majority of 9,329 on the returns as we go to press.

The victory in Kentucky is but a part of the Republican gains over the country. Massachusetts stood by Coolidge who knocked the police strike on the head. New York City simply swamped Tammany, giving the Republicans probable control of the Board of Aldermen as well as a big State victory.

Theodore Roosevelt went out at Oyster Bay and Mrs. Roosevelt helped toward the general celebration by presenting him with another son, who will be named Quentin.

REPUBLICAN JUBILATE

Local Republicanism pulled off a great celebration Wednesday night in honor of the Republican victory. With band playing they paraded the streets serenading the leaders of both parties in the city.

THE PROHIBITION AMENDMENT

As we go to press the State-wide Prohibition Amendment is still in doubt but the cities voted strongly against it. It is believed the votes from the rural districts will put it thru flying.

Ohio put its Amendment thru by a majority of 120,000.

CONTROL OF LEGISLATURE DIVIDED

The composition of the General Assembly of Kentucky will show the Democrats with a majority of two in the Senate while the Republicans will have a majority of seven or eight in the lower house.

NEW SCHOOL PRINCIPAL

At a meeting of the School Board on Monday night, Rev. T. J. Belcher was elected Principal of the High School to succeed Prof. B. C. Lewis who has resigned to take charge of the Kelley Hotel at Harlan.

While our people are sorry to lose one so noble as Prof. Lewis from our midst it is a pleasure to know that Prof. Belcher will succeed him. During the time the latter has been with us he has shown his ability as a teacher and from an executive standpoint. He makes friends readily and we believe the children will "fall for him."

Other appointments made by the Board were Miss Jessie Mynhow as teacher of Eighth Grade and Miss Gladys Johnson teacher of Third Grade.

THE COAL STRIKE SYNOPSIS

With 125,000 miners out over the country, the Fuel Administration has confiscated all coal which it will distribute as it sees best. An injunction secured from the courts by the government forbids active leadership by union heads. The funds of the union are also tied up by the injunction. Thus far, none of the leaders seem to be seeking martyrdom on behalf of the strikers by disobeying the injunction.

Non-union miners are making a record production as individuals.

Predictions are that the strike will last from two weeks to a month. In some places the miners have been refused credit at the stores.

The Kentucky operators have asked for troops on account of threats.

Government on Wednesday refused to vacate the injunction.

President Lewis announces a willingness to negotiate with the operators.

Montana is showing a fuel shortage and will doubtless be taken care of by the Fuel Administration.

Oklahoma expects to run four mines with convict labor.

The Coal Mine Operator Scale Committee expects to sue the United Operators Scale Committee for breach of contract.

Troops have been sent to a number of sections to preserve order.

Lynch and Black Mountain are only mines running in this section.

NEW CITY COUNCIL

The following gentlemen have been elected to serve as the City Council of Barbourville, for the next two years: — T. J. Moore, A. M. Decker, Jr., C. B. Parrott, A. C. Mitchell, W. H. Mahan, L. C. Miller.

There was no opposition to their election.

All are excellent citizens and will look after the interests of the people as they would after their own.

The retiring members, R. W. Cole, S. B. Dishman, H. B. Goldman, G. W. Tye, J. H. Jones, Dr. J. E. Paulkner, are to be congratulated on the fact that they had the courage to build improved streets which have bettered the town so greatly in appearance. It has been fortunate also that party politics have been kept out of local elections.

PROF. BRIGHT DOING GOOD WORK

Prof. James C. Bright, principal of Straight Creek High School, spent Sunday with home folks. On Friday night the school had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, National Chairman of the Illiteracy Commission. Over three hundred heard the speech. Mrs. Stewart said the night school of which Prof. Bright has charge is one of the best in the State there being over fifty enrolled the ages of these pupils running from twenty-five to fifty years. Twenty-five of these could not read or write at all and have learned to read and write as well as mastering the elementary arithmetic.

Sergeant Saulin, a mountain man who came next to Sergeant York in the killing of Germans and who has the same number of decorations, was also a speaker on behalf of Moonlight Schools.

AMERICAN LEGION

Activities of the American Legion are in full swing in Washington. In connection with legislation for the handling of alien slackers, conscientious objectors and those convicted of the espionage act, according to word received at Kentucky State Headquarters from national officers of the Legion, who have requested that all local posts be informed concerning efforts now being made.

Resurgence of one entire membership of the Legion will be brought to bear upon members of the Senate committee on Immigration in an effort to obtain immediate action on a bill introduced into Congress and already passed by the House, which provides for the deportation of aliens and other undesirable convicts under the Espionage Act. Legion Headquarters has issued a bulletin calling on all local posts and State branches of the Legion throughout the country at large to urge their respective Senators to use their efforts to make this bill a law.

Henry D. Lindsey, chairman of the Legion, also asks all local posts and State branches to urge Senators to help obtain an amendment to the War Risk Insurance Act now in the Senate Committee on Finance, so that term insurance, as well as converted insurance, may be paid in lump sums and that the bill, already passed by the House, be passed at once by the Senate.

Following action by the State convention, with regard to the re-employment policy of the Standard Oil Co. in Ky. that corporation has assured Emmet O'Neal, State Employment officer, that it will assiduously co-operate with the Legion in the future and that no ex-service man formerly in its employ will be refused employment as good or better than that which he held before the war.

Sunday, November 9, has been designated as American Legion Sunday and hundreds of Kentucky clergymen will discuss the American Legion and kindred subjects in their pulpits that day.

THE CURSING HABIT

Man is a little being running a little race for a few years and then
passing into infinity.

God is infinite, from everlasting
to everlasting. He is the Creator, not only of this world but also of the countless worlds of which we know nothing. Through Him we breathe the breath of life and through Him we receive soul and spirit. His commandment is that we shall not take His name in vain with the promise that those who do so
will not be held guiltless.

And yet, as one passes along our streets, the Holy Name of God is tossed back and forth in filthy conversation which proves that reverence for God and His name are wholly lacking. The saddest part of the matter is that the men who filthily and carelessly use the name of God are passing on the curse to young boys who may be heard imitating their elders.

We believe that a Holy Name Society should be founded in school
and that the children should pledge themselves to abstain from a light
use of the name of God and of Christ. Such a movement would in-citate reverence toward God and things holy and without reverence
there can be no real religion.

Probably one of the principal
reasons why our churches are so empty is that through lack of teaching,
the growing generations have failed
to grasp the fact that the Eternal God should be revered with body
and soul and spirit, since without Him
we are as the dust of the earth.

Men and boys, stop the cursing
habit. Stop using the Name of God lightly. None of you would use the name of mother lightly and the Eternal God is more to you than many mothers. Every blasphemer denies God even though he does attend church services. His very attendance is an insult to the Almighty
since he pretends to worship the God he blasphemes.

Most of the churches are gathering humane funds for future work.
But unless minister and congregation work from the inside out, the money will fall to be of much use.
Good churchmanship comes only
from personal service and is strengthened by that service just as character is built up by daily living and striving.

ruptcy.

CENSUS INTERPRETATION OF THE WORD "FARM"

Washington, November 3.—What is a farm?

Seems foolish to ask such a question, doesn't it? Almost anyone can tell off hand just what a farm is
and knows one when he sees it.

But do you happen to know the interpretation Uncle Sam places on the word "farm" for census purposes? No? Then read how his Bureau of the Census defines the word:

"A farm for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed
by one person conducting agricultural operations, either by his own
labor or with the assistance of members of his household or hired employees."

In further explanation of this definition the Census Bureau points
out that the term "agricultural operations" is used as a general term
referring to the work of growing crops, producing other agricultural products and raising domestic animals, poultry or bees.

From this definition it will be seen that a farm may consist of a single tract of land or a number of separate and distinct tracts. And these several tracts may be held under different tenures as, for instance
when one tract is owned by the farmer and another is rented by him. Thus if a man who owns 100 acres rents an additional ten acres from some one else and operates both the 100 acres and the 10 acres, then his "farm" includes both tracts of land
comprising 110 acres.

By the same token when a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers or managers, each different tract of land operated by any such tenant, renter, cropper or manager is considered a separate and distinct farm by the Census Bureau.
Or, to give an example, if a man
owning 120 acres of land rents 40
acres to a tenant and farms the remaining 80 acres himself, his farm
is the 80 acres which he operates,
not the 120 acres which he owns,
while the 40 acre tract which he rents to a tenant comprises a separate farm to be reported in the name of the tenant.

Another question to be determind
is how important does an agricultural enterprise have to be in order to secure recognition in the census as a farm? A small vegetable garden or a chicken yard accommodating a few hussy hens will not be allowed to qualify as a "farm."
In the census no matter with what pardonable pride and satisfaction
the proprietor may view his agricultural enterprise.

But if the garden or chicken yard
expands until it covers not less than three acres of ground, or until it requires for its care the continuous services of at least one person, or yields products annually to the value of $250 or more, it comes within the census definition of a farm
and will be recognized as such and counted.

The agricultural schedule contains many questions regarding farm values, expenses and live stock as well as the acreage and
quantity of crops raised in the year 1919. Census Bureau officials are urging farmers everywhere to prepare for the census enumerator by looking over their books and records
so that accurate answers may be furnished to questions.

In this connection the Bureau of the Census emphasizes the fact that the information furnished to census
takers is absolutely confidential,
made so by Act of Congress, and that under no circumstances can any such information be used as a basis
for taxation.

"Co-operation between farmers
and the census officials next January
is more necessary and vital than ever before," declares Director of the Census, Sam L. Rogers. "The world-war and the part that the farmer played in it and will continue to play in the rehabilitation of Europe serve to make the agricultural section of the Fourteenth Decennial Census the most important in the Nation's history. Absolute accuracy and completeness in the census returns is the goal toward which every citizen should strive."

TO RAISE DAIRY CALVES

Modern farming calves are not allowed to suck the cow for more than two or three days. The newly born calf should have the milk for the first few days. This is the colostrum milk, and aids in putting the digestive system of the calf in good working order. A calf should be taught to drink from a pail three days after birth, unless it is very weak and puny. Two quarts of its mother's milk is enough at a feeding until after the first week.

The following general rules may be used as a guide in calf feeding:

First week—A sixty pound calf
may be fed four quarts a day of its mother's milk warm from the cow.

Second week—Increase feed to five or six quarts a day. This does not need to be mother's milk.

Third week—Feed as for second week, except substitute one quart
of skim milk for one quart of the whole milk.

Fourth week—One-half the milk
may be skimmed. Feed six quarts.

Fifth week—Feed all skim milk
if the calf is thrifty. Increase the amounts gradually until three months old, when it may receive ten or twelve quarts a day.

Large calves will need a little more milk. Experience will have to govern changes from the above rules. Calves should never be aver-
fed. The general tendency is to feed calves too much.

A little grain should be fed as soon as skim milk feeding begins. Two parts by weight of cracked corn and one part bran makes a good mixture. This grain can be sprinkled in a box and fed after the milk.

Every calf should be supplied with plenty of roughage, such as alfalfa
or mixed hay, as soon as it will eat
it. Calves will do well on pasture
when it is available. National

Mattiffly Declares Tru- tona's Benefits Worth More Than That Amount to Him

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 6. "I believe I would have died had it not been for Trutona, but now I feel good all over—just like a buyagain
and I wouldn't take $500 for my relief, W. B. Mattingly, a well known and highly respected business man
of Jeffersontown, near here, said recently.

"For the past twenty-three years"
Mr. Mattingly continued, "I have suffered from kidney trouble, nervousness and catarrh of the stomach.
I often suffered severely from pains in my back, chest and stomach. The little food I ate didn't agree with me
and I was usually constipated.

"I can't discern the least sign of my former nervousness, since I've taken Trutona. My bowels are acting regularly now too. It seems that everything I eat agrees with me.
The pains in my back, chest and stomach have vanished and I'm not annoyed at night by my kidneys as before. Trutona is a real medicine and I'm glad to recommend it and commend it to the public."

Trutona is especially beneficial for stomach, bowel and liver troubles,
catarrhal complaints, nervousness,

reconstructive agency, system purifier and body invigorant.

OFFICERS KILL JOHN RILEY TURNER

Shortly after 12 o'clock last Sunday, John Riley Turner (colored,) while under the influence of liquor, went into the dining room of the Cumberland Hotel and seated himself at the table and demanded his dinner. Guests who were present,
rose from the table. One of them,
W. F. Pollock, made the remark that if he was running the place he would throw the intruder thru the window.
Pollock then nothing more of the incident and went out and seated himself on the porch in front. A few minutes later Turner appeared with his gun in his hand and stated he was ready for the man who made
the remark that he should be thrown out.

He started to raise his gun when Pollock jumped up knocking Turner
off the porch and followed after to try and get the weapon.

In the scuffle Turner shot twice,
missing once, but the other shot
struck Pollock in the left shoulder,
going entirely thru.

The shooting attracted Sheriff H.
H. Howard and officers Brutus Metcalf, Green Thomas and Robert Metcalf who happened to be only a block away. The officers covered Turner, who was standing with his gun in his hand, and demanded a number of times for him to drop
his gun and surrender.

Instead of complying with their demand, he raised to shoot at the officers, and in an instant he fell all crumpled up in the gutter with several bullets in him, one of them
striking him in the center of the forehead.

No blame is attached to the officers as the shooting was a clear case
of self defense.

Turner has been a well known character here for years, was about 45 years of age and was reputed to have considerable means. His remains were taken to Poor Farm on Tuesday for burial.

Pollock, whom Turner shot, was taken to the Shady Lawn Hospital
and today was reported as able to sit up and considered entirely out of danger. He is employed by one of the coal operations in the county
in charge of a steam shovel gang.

HOW GOOD BLOOD HELPED A DAIRY

A good dairy bull, purchased by a Montana County farm bureau member, cost $100 as a calf; it was put
at the head of a herd of 10 cows
the average annual production of which was 4,800 pounds of milk and 260 pounds of butter fat. The daughters of the bull have now replaced the old cows in the herd and exceeded the production of their dams by an average of 102 pounds
of butterfat and 1,825 pounds of milk per year. This improvement noted $300 profit each year without taking into account the difference in value of the calves. A cow should "carry on" for at least six years,
which would mean $1,800 additional profit from the 10 cows, because of the $100 invested in the bull calf.

SNAP with great results." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by Costello Drug Co.

Tablets.
"I am thankful for the good I have received by using Chamberlain's Tablets. About two years ago when I began taking them I was suffering a great deal from distress
after eating, and from headache and a tired, languid feeling due to indigestion and a torpid liver. Chamberlain's Tablets corrected these disorders in a short time, and since taking two bottles of them my health has been good," writes Mrs.
M. P. Harwood, Auburn, N. Y.

Sleep and Rest.
One of the most common causes
of insomnia and restlessness is indigestion. Take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper
and see if you do not rest better and sleep better. They only cost a quarter.

WANTED:—A FATHER

Several thousand big-eyed, lonesome little kiddies in France, whose fathers lie beneath the closely set wooden crosses which mark the fields and highways, would begin to take heart again could they realise
the big wave of practical sympathy
forthcoming which is being set in motion in this country.

The Fatherless Children of France, an American organization
co-operating with a similar organization in France, of which Marshal Joffre is the head, has created a special campaign Committee, with Mrs. Walter S. Brewster of Chicago
as chairman, and is initiating drives
in all parts of the country.

At Galveston, Texas, a fund of over $500 was realized thru a prize package day, when each box of the Inexpensive confection sold on the streets by pretty young girls contained a coupon entitling the purchaser to some specific article donated by the merchants of the town.

The price fixed on these packages realized a profit of almost 75 per cent, for the little children of France. In Chicago a Vanity Fair
is being given, with the co-operation of the makers of gowns, society women agreeing to appear as mannequins. A fund of $10,000 is expected to be realized from this, while a similar affair is announced to be held in Washington and an Armistice Ball in Boston. At Muskogee, Oklahoma, the local committee set checked checking privileges at the October State Fair, and realized a considerable sum from this source and the sale of postcards. A street
dance at Macomb, Illinois, was productive of good returns; tag day at Des Moines, Iowa, brought $3,285,
a garden fete in Los Angeles, almost $2,500 and one in Cincinnati $36, 625, while in many other communities the motto is "no drive but a steady do."

Yet with all this help there are still 40,000 wistful, little fatherless
children not yet provided for, to whom American aid had been promised before the armistice. Only ten cents a day, added to the tiny pension of the French Government has been able to grant orphans of the war, will provide for one such child.

A Rat That Didn't Smell After Being Dead for 3 Months.

"I swear it was dead at least 3
months," said James Sykes, Butcher Westfield, N. J. "We saw this rat every day. Put a can of RAT-SNAP behind a barrel. Months
later my wife asked about the rat.
Remembered the barrel, looked behind it. There was the rat—dead,
not the slightest odor." Three sizes

teed by Costello Drug Company.

Now Is a Good Time To Drive Out Catarrh

The Trouble Is In the Blood.
Summer catarrh, with its nauseous discharge, stuffed up glands, difficult breathing, and summer colds, is bad enough, but the worst of it is yet to come if you neglect to check the growth that is forming to attack you with ten-fold greater power during the winter. That's why it is so important to treat catarrhs and other blood disorders with S. S. S. during warm weather, and thus free the system from all impurities.

It is now an established fact that catarrh is in the blood and that lotions and ointments do not give relief. The experience of others has proven that S. S. S. strikes at the very root of the trouble and eliminates it. Waste no time in this matter, for it is of the utmost importance. Write to our Medical Advisor about your case. NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull-eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce.

Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for trial package.

Will the Influenza Return?

FEDERAL HEALTH AUTHORITIES PREDICT ITS RECURRENT

GUARD AGAINST IT BY BUILDING UP THE BLOOD

Pepto-Mangan Creates Rich Red Blood and Increases Strength

General Huc, of the United States Health Service, in a report from Washington, says the public that the much talked of influenza epidemic will probably return this fall and winter. All health authorities agree that the best defense against this (as well as other infectious diseases) is a strong, robust, red-blooded man. In view of these facts, it is wise of us every effort to build up the blood and thus increase the body's resistance to the invasion of the germ of the disease. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is an absolutely dependable blood builder in all cases. It gives vitality not due to the use of the vital organs. It creates the appetite, imparts color to the cheeks, and creates new hope and ambition in those who have been pale, weak and listless. Physicians recommend Gude's Pepto-Mangan. When you order, be sure the word "Gude's" is on the package. Without "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan. Furnished in both liquid and tablet form. For sale by all druggists.

Ten acres of good bearing apple trees which have been properly pruned and sprayed, will pay big money.

CAMP WORKERS AID MEN RETURNING TO CIVILIAN LIFE

RED Cross Home Service workers in Camp Taylor (Ky.) and Camp Sherman (O.) have found their assistance required more and more as time passes by soldiers returning to civilian life who need aid in making the change.

During July 24,677 men passed through the Kentucky demobilization camp and of this number 2,502 new cases are recorded in the camp Home Service records. In addition, 2,270 men applied for information, mostly in regard to insurance. This total puts Camp Taylor at the head of the list for all camps in the country in volume of work of this kind.

Camp Sherman stands third.

HOME SERVICE USED TO FIND MISSING MEN

THE Home Service sections of the American Red Cross in Ohio, in Ohio, and in Ohio, are helping to find missing men who have disappeared since their discharge from military service.

One is Sgt. Russell Irving Viles, discharged June 17 from service with the Motor Transport Corps.

Private Harry E. Ross, Co. H, 25th Infantry, First Division, A. E. F., was wounded while serving at Passchendaele, July 19, 1918. Since that time only his delirious reports have reached his mother, Mrs. Clark D. Ross, 3012 Third St., Des Moines, Ia.

Private Joseph Birch Walker of Monticello, Tenn., is believed to be mentally disabled as the result of gas. He was discharged from Camp Dodge in June.

Private George Nelson, C. E. F., has been missing since February 1, 1919. He is suffering a type of memory following shell shock.

Any of these men may be in the Lake Division, ignorant of names and addresses.

LOST BAGGAGE OF A. E. F.

National Headquarters has called attention to the fact that there are at present no provisions for the return of lost baggage belonging to members of the A. E. F. on the Government docks at Hoboken, N. J., consisting of 20,000 trunk boxes, 15,000 bed rolls, 5,000 suit cases, and 110,000 blanket bags, which have come from overseas and remain undelivered by their owners.

Much of this baggage is marked with the name only and cannot be forwarded to the owner. In all cases a new shipping address is required. All owners of lost baggage should be advised to send their claims and present addresses to the LOST BAGGAGE CLERK, OFFICE NO. 2, Hoboken, N. J., with an accurate description of the missing property.

A complete card index there permits prompt identification and the baggage will be forwarded by express at Government expense if on hand at Hoboken. It is important that the greatest possible publicity be given the above fact thru your local press, the churches and such other means as may suggest themselves to you.

The Red Cross desires to assist each man from overseas to recover his lost property as well as to help the Government to dispose of this accumulation.

TINY FARMERETTE BOOSTS FARM HOME

This is Virginia, in her overalls and her denim shirt, dressed up like a real farmerette. Virginia has a happy home now, out in the country. But there was a time when she knew what it was to be without a home.

She was taken, a homeless waif, to the Kentucky Children's Home Society in Louisville. There she was given medical care and brought to health, and given the best of care that the children at the home could give her until a real home with a family was found for her.

Now Virginia is one of the many little school girls of the state who are helping to build a home for the homeless. When Virginia was in the Children's Home she had to spend most of her time in a little room crowded with other waifs. There was no playground, and the schoolroom was crowded and poorly lighted and ventilated. There was not the proper amount of hospital equipment to care for the younger babies who came on. And the furniture and fixtures were cheap and shabby.

Under the plan of the school children of the state, all the children who have homes will be given an opportunity to help build a home for the homeless children who have none. It will be a fine, modern institution on a farm near St. Matthews, thoroughly equipped with hospital wards, kindergarten, and schoolrooms, and with clean, comfortable beds.

And best of all, there will be a big playground on the farm with lots of fresh air and sunshine, and there will be cows and chickens, and fresh milk and eggs and vegetables for the children in the new home. That is what the school children of the state will do in the last week of October. It is a "Children's Crusade," and the growing children will be allowed to get in on it and help too.

We have all helped the French and the Italian children. Now for the Kentucky children.

REAL ESTATE MOVEMENT

The last half of October, Swinebroad, the Real Estate Man of Lancaster, was kept busy holding auction sales. On Oct. 15 he sold for Mrs. Geo. Hacker, Mrs. Lynn Buster and Mrs. Wm. Geary, 365 acres of land in Wayne County, adjoining the town of Monticello, to various parties in building lots and farms for the aggregate sum of $94,504. On the 18th he sold for Miss Simpson a tract of 76 acres of unimproved land in Garrard County at an average of $214 per acre. On the 21st he sold for R. W. Clavin his farm of 335 acres in Mercer County to different parties at an average price of $230 per acre; a portion of the farm with the improvements, about 243 acres, averaged $301 per acre. On the 22nd he held another sale in Garrard County and sold 140 acres for N. J. Gosney at $275 per acre.

Again on the 24th, he sold at auction for J. L. Butler his farm of 190 acres in Lincoln County at $150 per acre. On the 25th he sold for Allen Edelen 170 acres of land in Mercer County, in two tracts of 85 acres each at an average price of $162.50 per acre. And on Nov. 1st for H. A. Bastin a brick residence and about 4 acres of land just at the edge of the city limits of Lancaster, in Garrard County for $11,760 and on the same day two building lots for Roy Schoeder at $1700 each. Total sales amounted to $312,482. All of these sales were very successful and again demonstrated the fact that when it comes to selling land Swinebroad is in a class by himself. His experience in making subdivisions and how to sell farms and his judgement of the value of land make his services much sought after and he is one of the few real estate men who have realized that the real estate business is a profession and must be conducted so as to secure the confidence of those with whom he deals. Swinebroad also believes in printers' ink and we judge that he spends more in advertising than any other real estate man in the business and is thereby able to give his clients the best of service.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents a Year In Advance

What Could You Expect?

By DORA MOLLAN

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It occurred to Potter Lamb, as he rearranged his brand-new furniture, that one more chair, making four instead of three, would bridge the chasm between penury and prosperity in the aspect of his law office.

Putting the telephone receiver to his ear, with the number of the town's one furniture emporium on the tip of his tongue, the fledgling attorney heard a shrill voice ejaculate: "But what can you expect of a girl who was named after a pocket handkerchief? What—didn't you know? Yes, her mother picked it up at an auction—had belonged to a German countess, she said. The name was embroidered on it—and she went and wished it on the kid. Ever hear of such a thing?"

Realizing that he was listening in on a telephone visit, Lamb automatically hung up the receiver. Then he wished he hadn't—for he'd rather like to know what sort of thing it could be that you should expect of a girl who had been named after a pocket handkerchief. He might meet one some day. If he did, would she be square and substantially built, like a man, dependable in emergency, or a mere froth of lace and filmy muslin, as much real use as a cobweb overcoat?

The clock in the town hall spire struck 12. The expansive grin that had spread over Lamb's countenance during his rambling faded. It wouldn't do to be late to one of Mrs. Noyes' excellent dinners.

He grabbed the receiver. This time the line was clear. He placed the order for the chair, seized his hat and rushed off to Mrs. Noyes, girls and handkerchief quite forgotten.

Potter put in the early part of the afternoon fitting the new chair into the equipment of the office. Then, when he had exhausted all possible combinations, and stood in the corner each time to "see how the effect looked," as the old lady said, and had finally decided upon one of the arrangements as beyond improvement, there was nothing left to do but sit down and await the coming of clients. He prayed that they might come soon; he had his living to get. Living! What an indefinite word! It might mean anything from a butler-sized establishment and a steam yacht to carrels the neighbors brought in. The briefless attorney stood a long time at the window watching the trickle of traffic in the street below and rolling innumerable cigarettes.

At dusk the happy thought came that a brisk walk before supper might add even more zest to his enjoyment of Mrs. Noyes' culinary achievements. He took his hat down—then hung it up again and flung himself down at his desk where a hook of Ohio reports lay open.

There were steps on the stairway. Came a tap at his door. Potter Lamb opened it and a girl walked in. Momentarily she gazed about the room with a frank show of curiosity. Momentarily, also, the lawyer gazed at his caller. His first client!

A slim young girl, garbed in blue serge with a gray turtleneck and a fetching angle. With a calm self-possession she finished her survey of the room and turned her eyes upon him. They were unusually fine eyes, Potter thought.

"You are Attorney Lamb?"

"Guilty," admitted Potter, just the least flustered; and it was not every girl who could upset Mr. Lamb's lawyerly pose, even a mere trifle.

"I have $2,000 here," the girl said, putting a bag, "and I wish to put it in your hands to do with as I direct."

"I shall be most happy," said Lamb, and there was inquiry in his tone.

"You have been in town two days; so you have probably heard how I acquired it."

The young man shook his head.

"Can it be possible? Well, I'll tell you. It's breach-of-promise money."

"You—that is—do I understand—"

Potter, to whom this information had come from this extremely interesting girl, like a shrapnel shell out of a Christmas cornucopia, was floundering.

"Exactly. I deliberately snared an honored and wealthy citizen of this town into proposing marriage to me—got it in writing. Then with malice aforethought I scared him off—and brought a suit that netted me this by way of settlement." The girl drew from the bag a roll of bills and placed them on the table. "I've come to you because you're a stranger here—and nobody in this town must have the satisfaction of knowing what I do with it."

"How did you get rid of him? I don't see how any—" Potter, determined to be utterly professional, didn't mean to say that at all; but it popped

"Nagged him." The girl laughed audaciously and heartily. It was an infectious laugh and Potter joined in without in the least knowing what at. Still a fellow could imagine—faintly old fool, to think a young girl like this—

Instantly, almost, the girl was serious again. "There's an old man," she resumed. "He worked for this prosperous citizen for 35 years; gave all of himself to his work—and always for the meagerest wages. Then, when he grew too old to work any longer, his employer refused to pension him. And he's destitute. I got it for him—that's all. His name and address are written on the paper wrapped around the money. I want you to see him; he gets it, in small amounts, as he needs it; and that he doesn't find out where it comes from. He'll tell, sure. And I just won't have these town busybodies know. Will you do it?"

"Certainly. I'll make out a receipt for the money. In what name, please?"

"Gustava Richmond."

As Potter wrote the receipt he stole several brief but highly gratifying glances at the girl. By the time he had signed and deliberately dried the document on the blotter he had come to the conclusion that Potter Lamb, the lawyer, would be recent to his obligations to Potter Lamb, the man. If he did not let the man part of him have something to say.

"Miss Richmond," he said as he handed over the receipt, "would you mind very much if I were to say that while what you have done might be called impudicous, I think it one of the most courageous things I ever heard of? And I should be glad to call myself your friend, quite aside from being your lawyer."

Potter Lamb wasn't handsome, but he had very honest brown eyes and there was something in them that brought the faintest added tinge of rose to the cheeks of his client as she replied with a suspicion of a tremble in her voice: "That would be very nice indeed. I—I haven't many. I'm not conventional enough, I fancy."

It was 15 minutes after that, what with one word and another, and at Mrs. Noyes' his supper was growing cold, when Potter ushered his first client out.

"You don't know how glad I am that you made that old fox give up," he said. "Not only for the justice of it but because it gives me the opportunity to know you—to really know you. But what an amazing thing for a girl to do!"

"What can you expect?" his departing visitor laughed back from the third step down, "from a girl who was named after a pocket handkerchief?"

STORY OF TURTLE CREATION

Australian Blacks Have Romantic Yarn About Origin of Reptile.

The Australian blacks have a prettier, more romantic story about the creation of the turtle than that they were just one of the many things 'od put upon the earth. They say that while Wayunbeh, an Australian tribesman, was roaming the bush, he came across Oolah, the lizard-woman, with three children, digging for yams. He stole her and the children and took them to his camp. The other members of the tribe were angry with him, because they had saved a young girl for him to marry, and told him they would not help him fight Oolah's tribe, when it came to get her back.

When the savage tribe came to do battle Wayunbeh went out to meet them, wearing a shield in front and behind him. When his enemies shut at him he drew his head and limbs in between the shields. He did this three times, then he realized the enemy was upon him and his only escape was in the river. He threw one shield away and jumped in. They waited on the bank for him to reappear, ready to shoot him as soon as his head came above water. To avoid them he turned himself into a turtle, the tribesmen say, and he is in the water to this day, with his shield on his back. When anyone comes to harm him he draws his head and limbs under his shield.

Panama Hats.

Panama hats are made from the expanded leaves of the stemless screw pine (caruluvien palmato), a native of Central America and Colombia. After special treatment to remove the soft part of the leaf, the fiber is soaked to render it pliable and the weaving is done under water. The hats most valuable are made from single leaves. The plant from which the hats are made has been introduced into Java, while experiments for its introduction into the Philippines have also been made, as the Filipinos are expert hat makers.

MIXED WHOLESALE AND RETAIL MARKETS TO SOLVE PROBLEM OF COST OF LIVING

Farmers' Public Markets Shaped by Local Needs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In attacking the cost of living problem through local public markets, communities might well give heed to definite underlying principles that are known to apply to such marketing institutions. Unless one is familiar with the flow of farm produce from the country into the market basket the distinction between "farmers' retail market" and "farmers' wholesale market" is not drawn, but both may be called a "farmers' market" and pictured as one and the same in their operation and function.

Some communities have tried to change farmers' wholesale markets into retail markets, where the housewife could fill her market basket with purchases made direct from farmers—always at a saving. These attempts have usually resulted in failure and a deal of friction between the public, the farmers and officials because, according to city marketing men of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, the farmers' wholesale market is a very different institution from a farmers' retail market.

Wholesale Market. A farmers' wholesale market draws to it producers who specialize in truck crops and fruits, and who count on handling corn, potatoes, tomatoes, apples, strawberries or other crops in large quantities. They desire quick sales in large lots after they reach the market so they can return to their farms and the work of production. Time to such growers is more valuable than the difference between what they get in wholesale quantities for their products and what they might realize by bringing long enough to retail their load in small lots at higher than wholesale prices.

Retail farmers' markets, on the other hand, attract a group of producers who raise a small amount of fruit or vegetables as a side line, and whose crops do not demand as close attention as those of the truck raiser. Often a farmer who raises only a few vegetables can send them to a retail farmers' market in mixed lots, by a member of his family, who is able to remove away from the farm long enough to dispose of these products to housewives carrying market baskets.

The retail farmers' market depends as much for its success upon location as on any other factor. It must be convenient for the housewife, while a wholesale farmers' market need not be as centrally located, because dealers have wagons or trucks with which to gather their supplies. Farmers' wholesale markets are an early morning institution, starting business at day-break or even before, while a farmers' retail market starts later and runs for a longer time. This, of course, may make possible a mixed retail and wholesale farmers' market; but in organizing such a market it is likely that it will appeal to different groups of farmers, and that it will be necessary to regulate the hours so there will be no conflict between wholesale and retail business among the wagons or sheds.

Too Much Expected.

Although retail farmers' markets have been urged in many communities as a means of reducing the cost of living, too much is often expected of them, according to men who have studied the problem, and who point out that all locally raised produce, especially the more staple crops, such as potatoes, cabbage, onions and apples, represent but a small amount of the total of such products consumed by city dwellers, the bulk of which is shipped in from more distant sections. Retail farmers' markets do serve as an outlet for a certain amount of local produce, varying with localities, that might otherwise be left on the farm, or not produced by the farmer who depended upon other sources of income than fruits and vegetables.

Any community contemplating the establishment of a farmers' retail market should first make sure that there are in that community enough farmers who are willing to haul their produce to market and dispose of it in small quantities direct to the consumer.

Co-operative Shipping Clubs.

Simply of organization and the fact that no capital is required make the co-operative shipping of live stock peculiarly adapted to communities in which more complex forms of co-operation would be impracticable. Although not necessarily feasible in all sections, especially those in which live stock generally is marketed in carload lots, or where there is insufficient stock suitable for shipment to market, or where the central markets are not readily accessible, nevertheless there are many communities in various parts of the country which would be greatly benefited by such associations.

FARMER WASTES MUCH MONEY

One of Chief Ways Is Failure to Keep Farm Equipment in Proper Storage Place.

No one likes to make money any more than the farmer, yet he is the person who is most prone to waste it. One of the chief ways in which he wastes money is by his failure to keep in proper condition his farming equipment. Many kinds of machinery which are used in one season and not in the others should be stored away when not in use.

Properly Treated Cow.

Of course, it goes without saying that the well-fed, properly treated cow will show a higher percentage of butterfat than the same cow would if poorly fed and badly treated.

Don't Neglect Chickens.

Do not neglect your chickens for in poultry raising as well as in other callings it is the man or woman who sticks to the game early and late who wins.

Nothing like a wayward bit of Mother Earth to get the human heart, nothing like a wild weed patch! It is a laugh, swinging as all around into the like iron things. It isn't a random condition that makes most of us take a vacation. It's the call of a wild weed patch.

CHESTNUT DISHES.

The chestnut is especially popular, being the nut most enjoyed for Halloween parties. Its own delicacy of flavor blends so well with others that it is a general favorite and always a delight to the palate. Roasted and served with apples, cider and doughnuts, an October party is quite complete.

A Tempting Entree.—Roast and mash to a paste one pound of chestnuts. Add half a cupful of cream, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a dash of salt with two well-beaten eggs; pour into well-buttered timbale molds and bake, set in a dish of hot water. When firm, in about 25 minutes, turn out and serve with a cream sauce or with a rich tomato sauce.

A delicious soup may be made with chestnuts as a foundation. Cook a quart of chestnuts in boiling water, slip off the brown skins and drop them into cold water. Drop again into boiling water; add a small onion, three stalks of celery, a small blade of mace and a bit of bay leaf. When the nuts are tender wash through a sieve, add white stock, a tablespoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of paprika and a pint of hot milk. When boiling hot remove to the back part of the stove and add two well-beaten eggs and a half a cupful of sweet cream. Serve hot in bouillon cups.

A Chestnut Salad.—For a dinner salad, chestnuts are delicious. Mix after blanching with chopped apple and celery; garnish with water cress and serve with a mayonnaise dressing.

Dainty Chestnut Dessert.—Prepare a custard, adding a teaspoonful of softening gelatin, a little flavoring of any kind and add a pint of prepared chestnuts. Pour into a mold, and when serving surround with whipped cream.

Brussels sprouts and chestnuts served together is a greatly appreciated dainty. Serve in a thick cream sauce.

Chestnut croquettes is another good dish and with a few pounds of chestnuts and a little forethought one may prepare any number of delicious dishes.

O suns and skies and clouds of June And days of June together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's bright blue weather.

—Helen Hunt Jackson.

FRENCH DISHES FAVORITES IN AMERICA.

We will have to admit that the French have distanced us in matters of economy. They look with disfavor upon the huge roasts and juicy steaks which are found on American tables. Though France knows much, she does not know it all, by any means.

Mark Twain, in his usual entertaining vein, says: "There is here and there an American who will say he can remember rising from an European table d'hôte perfectly satisfied; but we must not overlook the fact that there is here and there an American who will lie."

Burgundian Pate.—For this dish the breasts of two chickens must be pounded into a paste; add to this one cupful of fresh bread crumbs and half a cupful of melted butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and five beaten yolks of eggs. Cook six fivers and six gizzards one hour in good stock. Then add a cupful of chopped ham and the same amount of chopped mushrooms cooked in butter. Cook a few moments and then cool. Line a pale mold with puff paste, fill with the mixture, cover with a paste and bake slowly in a moderate oven. Cover with paper if the crust browns too quickly and add stock through the opening. Serve cold or hot.

Cream Fritters.—Take a quart of milk, one cupful of salt, a cupful of blanched and chopped almonds and a tablespoonful of orange flower water. Roll the milk, add sugar, butter and salt and cook ten minutes. Then stir in six beaten eggs, and cook until thick. Spread in a well-buttered pan an inch thick to cool. When chilled cut in diamonds, dip in crumbs and egg and fry a golden brown in deep fat. Serve hot with a lemon sauce.

Let me live in my house by the side of the road. Where the race of men go by— They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong. Woe, foolish—so am I! Then why should I sit in the corner's seat. Or hurt the cynic's lean? Let me live in my house by the side of the road And to a friend to man.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY CHICKEN DISHES.

One tires of the usual and ordinary and longs for some new way to present the familiar.

French cooks are masters of the art of surprising with the familiar, yet one does not always wish a dish to be entirely lost in seasonings. Some of the following dishes may seem extravagant, but no scrap of meat or bit of bone need be wasted, as there is stock, salad, timbales and canapés which may be made from small bits.

Chicken à la Marengo.—This dish is said to have been originated for Napoleon after the battle of Marengo. Slice and clean a five-pound chicken and cut it up for fricassee. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add three tablespoonfuls of the best olive oil. When it is hot add the dark meat of the chicken and cook five minutes. Then add the white meat with salt and pepper and a bit of garlic. Mix and stir over a good fire and cook 20 minutes, until each piece is a golden brown. Have ready a tomato sauce, made from one can of tomatoes a bit each of onion, carrot, parsley, cooked thick and rubbed through a sieve; add one-half pound of fresh mushrooms and the chicken. Cook the mushrooms in fat five minutes. Arrange the chicken on a platter; add to the gravy in the pan three tablespoonfuls of the tomato puree, stir until it is hot; pour over the chicken and serve.

Chicken Baked in Milk.—Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one large onion thickly sliced; cut two young chickens in pieces for serving, cover and cook slowly, turning often, for ten minutes; then add one cupful of chicken stock and cook until the chicken is tender. Remove the chicken, put stock and onion through a sieve and add one and one-half tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour creamed together. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange the chicken on a serving dish, pour the sauce around it and garnish with sliced bananas cut in diagonal slices, dipped in flour and sautéed in butter.

A widespread hopeful disposition is your only true umbrella in this vale of tears.

SOME CHOICE CAKES FOR OCCASIONS.

Careful baking is a most important point in successful cake making. If the cake is to bake one hour, watch the oven the first quarter or 25 minutes and see that it commences to rise; the second quarter it should finish rising and begin to brown; the third quarter it should finish browning and begin to shrink from the pan, and the last quarter, blanches the baking. If a cake rises in the middle and bursts open, it may have too much flour or too strong a heat. A cake filled with large holes has either too much baking powder or soda or it has not been well blended. It is not best to move a cake in the oven until it has finished rising, then it can be safely turned. The first five minutes one may turn a cake without injuring it.

Wedding Cake.—Cream one pound of sugar gradually and beat until well mixed. Separate the whites and yolks of 12 eggs; beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored, the whites until stiff and dry. Add the yolks to the first mixture. To four cupfuls of sifted flour (one pound) reserve a third of a cupful to dredge the fruit. The rest sift with two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon and three-fourths of a teaspoonful each of nutmeg, mace, and mace and a half-teaspoonful of cloves. Then add three tablespoonfuls of orange juice, one of rose water and two of lemon juice. Add a pound of currants and figs, three pounds of raisins, one pound of citron, all cut fine and dredged with flour. Fold in the whites before adding the fruit. Bake three hours in a slow oven.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time, I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINA B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I. Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

Organize Fire Fighters Permanently.

The rural fire-fighting companies organized in war time by the farm bureau of California have proved so successful that they are being organized this year for use in the present fire season. Most of the counties report that the equipment has been overhauled, repaired when necessary, and that the companies have been brought up to full strength and ready for work. In a number of counties the companies have been called out for service.

A NIGHT STRUGGLE.

Paul Hewlett, loitering at night in Madison square, New York, was approached by an Eskimo dog. He follows the dog to a gambling house and meets the animal's mistress coming out with a large amount of money. She is beautiful and in distress and he follows her. After protecting her from two assassins he takes her in charge, and puts her in his own rooms for the rest of the night. He returns a little later to find a murdered man in his rooms and Jacqueline dazed, with her memory gone. He decides to protect Jacqueline, gets rid of the body and prepares to take her to Quebec in a search for her home. Simon Leroux, searching for Jacqueline for some unfriendly purpose, finds them, but Hewlett evades him. In Quebec he learns that she is the daughter of a recluse in the wilds, Charles Duchaine. Pere Antoine tells Hewlett Jacqueline is married and tries to take her away. Hewlett engages passage on a boat to St. Boniface.

The road, however, led me into a blind alley, the farther extremity being the base of the cliff; but another street emerged from it at a right angle, and I plunged into this, believing that any of the byways would eventually take me to the top of the acclivity.

As I entered this street I heard the footsteps behind me quicken and, looking around, perceived that the man was close upon me. He stopped at the moment I did and disappeared in a small court.

Now I was afraid. The mighty cliff before me, the silence of the deserted alleys in which I wandered helplessly, the thought of Jacqueline alone, waiting anxiously for my return, almost unmanned me. I almost ran forward into the byway which seemed to lead toward the summit, and as I did so I heard the footsteps close behind me again.

On my left hand was a tiny unfenced courtyard, not more than six yards in area, and I turned into this quickly and waited. I was confident that the bend in the street had hidden me from my pursuer, and, as I anticipated, he came on at a swifter rate.

He was abreast of me when I put out my hand and grasped him by the coat, while with the other I felt in my pocket for my automatic pistol. It was not there. I had left it in the pocket of the furrier's shop and had sent to the Chateau. And I was looking into the villainous face of the ruffian who had knocked me down on Sixth avenue!

"What are you following me for?" I cried furiously.

He wrenched himself out of my grasp and pulled a long knife from his pocket. I caught him by the wrist, and we wrestled to and fro upon the snow. The keen steel slashed my fingers, but the thought of Jacqueline helped me.

I got his hand open, snatched the knife, and flung it far away among the stunted shrubs that clung to the cliff side. And we stood watching each other, panting.

He did not try to attack me again, but stood just out of my reach, grinning diabolically at me. His gaze shifted over my shoulder. Instinctively I swung around as the dry snow crackled behind me.

I was a second too late, for I saw nothing but the looming figure of a second ruffian and his upraised arm; then painless darkness seemed to envelop me, and I was conscious of plunging down into a fathomless abyss.

CHAPTER VII.

Captain Dubois.

(Chung! Clang!)
It sounded as though some titanic blacksmith were pounding on a mighty anvil to a devil's chorus of laughter. And I was bound to the steel, and each blow awakened hideous echoes which went resounding through my brain forever.

(Chung! Clang!)
I strove to free myself. I knew that it was a dream from which I must awaken, for the fate of the whole world depended on my awakening from the bonds of sleep.

It would be so easy to sink down into a deeper slumber, where even the clanging of the anvil beneath those hammer strokes would no longer be heard; but against this was the imperative need to save—not the world now, but—

The name was as sweet as honey upon my lips. It was something worth living for. It was—Jacqueline!

That name—Annette—Jeannette—Jacqueline!

had killed somebody, and I must save her!

Suddenly I realized that my eyes were wide open and that I was staring at the moon over the housetops. With consciousness came pain. My head throbbed almost unbearably, and I was stiff with cold. I raised myself weakly, and then I became aware that somebody was bending over me.

It was a roughly dressed, rough-looking denizen of the low quarter into which I had strayed.

"Diable! I thought you were dead!" I could make out amid the stream of his dialect, but the remainder of his speech was beyond my understanding.

I looked round in bewilderment.

"Where am I?" I asked, still bound by that first memory of New York.

"In Sous-le-Cap, m'sieur," answered the man.

I felt in my pocket for my watch and drew it out. It was strange that the men had not robbed me, but I suppose they had become terrified at their work and had run off. However I did not think of that at the time.

It was a few minutes past eight. And the boat sailed at nine. I must have lain stunned in Sous-le-Cap street for an hour and a half, at least, and only the supreme necessity of awakening, realized through unconsciousness, had saved me from dying under the snows.

I found that I could walk, and having explained to the man that I wished to go to the Chateau, was taken by him to the top of a winding road, near at hand, from which I could see my destination at a great distance from me.

Dismissing my friendly guide and sending him back rejoicing with liberal largesse, I hurried as quickly as I could make my way until I burst into the Chateau at half past the hour.

I must have presented a dreadful spectacle, for my hair and collar were matted with blood, and I saw the guests stare and shrink from me. The clerk came toward me and stopped me at the entrance to the elevator.

"Where is Miss Hewlett?" I gasped.

I caught him by the arm, and I think he imagined that I was going to seize him by the throat also, for he backed away from me, and I saw a look of fear come into his eyes.

"Your friend came for her and said that you had met with an accident," the clerk continued. "She went with him at once. He took her away in a sleigh. I was sure that you had missed her when you came in."

But already I was half way across the hall and running for the door. I raced wildly across the court and toward the terrace.

The meaning of the scheme was clear. Jacqueline was on Captain Duchaine's boat, which sailed at nine, and only twenty minutes remained to me.

I had underestimated Leroux's shrewdness. He must have telegraphed instructions from New York before my train was out of the country, secured the boat, laid his plans during his journey northward, and had me struck down while Jacqueline was stolen from my care. I should have read him better. I had always dawdled. I trusted to the future instead of acting. What chance had I against a mind like his?

I must have been running aimlessly up and down the terrace, blindly searching for a road down to the lower town, for a man seized me by the sleeve and I looked into the face of the hotel clerk again.

"This way!" he said, and hurried me to a sort of subway entrance and down a flight of steps. Before me I saw the turnstile which led to a cable railway.

He paid my fare and thrust me into a car. A boy came to close the lattice door.

The car glided down the cliff and stopped a few seconds later. I emerged through another turnstile and found myself in the lower town again at the foot of the precipice, above which rose the Chateau with its imposing facade, the ramparts and the towering etatide.

I reached the wharf and raced along the planks. I was in time, although the engines were throbbing in the Sainte-Vierge. But it was not she, but the dark Claire I sought at that moment, and I dashed toward her.

A man barred my approach. He caught me in his strong arms and held me fast.

"Diable! Are you mad, monsieur?" he burst out as I continued to struggle. And then I recognized my captor as Captain Dubois.

I stared wildly at him. "She is of the Claire!" I cried again.

"No, mon ami. She is aboard the Sainte-Vierge," replied Dubois, chuckling, "and if you wish to accompany mademoiselle you must come with me at once, for we are getting up steam."

I could not believe him. I thought that Leroux had tampered with the honest man. It was not until he had taken me, half forcibly, aboard and opened the door that I saw her.

"Jacqueline!" I cried, and clasped her in my arms for joy, and quite forgot.

A dancing shadow fell upon the wall behind the oil lamp. The honest captain was rubbing his hands in the doorway and chuckling with delight.

"It is all right, it is all right; excuse me, monsieur," he said. "But what has happened to you, monsieur? You have met with an accident?"

Jacqueline cried out and ran for water, and made me sit down, and began bathing my head. I contrived to whisper something of what had occurred during the moments when Jacqueline flitted to and fro. Dubois swore roundly.

"It is my fault, monsieur," he said. "I should have known. I should have accompanied you home. But I was anxious to get to the telegraph office to inform M. Danton of your coming. And I suspected something, too, for I knew that Leroux had something more in his mind than simply to convey some of his men to St. Boniface at such expense. Mademoiselle knows nothing of the plot against her, and has been greatly distressed for you. So it shall be understood that you fell down and hurt your head on the ice—eh?"

I agreed to this. "But what did she think?" I asked, as Jacqueline went back for some more water.

"That you had sent her to the Sainte-Vierge," he answered, "and that you were to follow her here—as you did. Parbleu!"

"One question of curiosity, monsieur, if it is permissible," he said a little later. "Why does Leroux wish Dubois Swore Roundly.

so much to stop your marriage with mademoiselle that he is ready to stoop to assassination and kidnapping?"

"Because he is himself in love with her," I said.

The captain clenched his fists. "God forbid!" he murmured. "They say his wife died of a broken heart. Ah, monsieur, swear to me that this shall never come about, that mademoiselle become his wife. Swear it to me, mon ami!"

I swore it, and we shook hands.

Five minutes later we had cast off, and the Sainte-Vierge steamed slowly through the drift ice that packed the gulf. There were no lights upon the Claire, and I surmised that the conspirators were keeping quietly hidden in expectation of Jacqueline's arrival, though how Dubois had outwitted them I could not at the time surmise.

Then I sought my cabin and fell asleep, dreaming of Jacqueline.

She Almost Started a Fad.

A girl who selected two earrings from different sets yesterday morning when dressing hurriedly was suspected of introducing a new fad. She was unconscious of the attention she attracted and did not realize that heads of her neighbors in elureb were turned and twisted to get a "close-up" of her jewels until she reached home. A glance in her mirror told her that she was the object of interest in her new, for a huge pearl blossomed in one ear and a brilliant blue pendant hung from the lobe of the other.—Worcester Evening Post.

Insects Do Much Good.

Although insects damage the crops, stored products and domestic animals in the United States to the enormous amount of $12,000,000 every year, nevertheless this damage is almost compensated by the good they do. Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, at the National Museum told of the value of the useful insects as cross-fertilizers of plants, as affecting the soil, in producing honey, silk, etc.

Bad Sickness Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people only realized the health-destroying power of an acid-stomach—of the many kinds of sickness and misery it causes—the lives it literally wrecks—they would guard against it as carefully as they do against a deadly plague. You know in an instant the first symptoms of acid-stomach—pains of indigestion; distressing, painful bloating; sour, gassy stomach; belching; food repeating; heartburn, etc. Whenever your stomach feels this way you should lose no time in putting it to rights. If you don't, serious consequences are almost sure to follow, such as intestinal fermentation, auto-intoxication, impairment of the entire nervous system, headache, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver; sometimes even cancer of the stomach and intestinal ulcers and cancer of the bowels. If you are not feeling right, see if it isn't acid-stomach that is the cause of your ill health. Take EATONIC, the wonderful modern stomach remedy. EATONIC Tablets quickly and surely relieve the pain, bloating, belching, and heartburn that indicate acid-stomach. Make the stomach strong, clean and sweet. By keeping the stomach in healthy condition so that you can get full strength from your food, your general health steadily improves. Results are marvellously quick. Just try EATONIC and you will be as enthusiastic as the thousands who have used it and who say they never dreamed anything could bring such marvellous relief. WAR RECORD OF LEVIATHAN

Monster Transport Carried Many Thousands of Soldiers to French Ports.

The giant transport Leviathan, following her arrival in New York harbor with Gen. Pershing and troops of the First division, brought to a close her important service in helping win the war. The big ship, after being refitted for passenger service, is to be turned back to the United States shipping board, the agency which seized it when the United States entered the war. While the future of the ship is uncertain, it is reported that she will be assigned to American passenger trade between New York and Liverpool, with possible extension in the future of a service to Hamburg.

The Leviathan, formerly the Vaterland, the second largest ship in the world, was interned in New York by the Germans in 1914. She was "willfully damaged" to the extent of more than $1,000,000. After being reconditioned by American engineers, she was assigned as a transport, and during and since the war made 19 round trips to the Atlantic, carrying a total of 185,500 soldiers, of whom 98,321 were carried overseas through submarine-infested seas. She was always a mark for U-boats, but her speed and the armament with which she was equipped saved her.

THEY TURNED AWAY DAZEDLY

Young Couple in Search of an Apartment Run Into Unusual Landlord.

They were swapping yarns at the Athletic club the other night and Frank Garhart told this one, though he doesn't vouch for its veracity.

"The young husband touched the landlord's doorbell timidly and his wife just as timidly sought his hand, when the door swung open and a fierce, bewhiskered man confronted them.

"I have you an apartment to rent?" asked the young husband.

"Have you any children?" roared the landlord, running a shrewd hand through his whiskers.

"No," replied the young husband, promptly.

"Any dogs?" blared the landlord.

"Not a one," chirped the young wife.

"Well, then," said the landlord triumphantly, "you can't get in here. We never rent apartments to people who haven't children or dogs."

The door slammed in their faces and they turned away dazedly.

GOOD ROADS

KEEP EARTH ROADS IN SHAPE

Engineer of Wisconsin Highway Commission Tells Benefits of Patrol System of Maintenance.

Earth roads will be in existence over wide areas for many years to come, notwithstanding the rapid extension of "permanent" road beds of different materials.

Mr. F. Sergeant, a division engineer of the Wisconsin highway commission, writes:

"After a season's experience with the patrol system of maintenance in division No. 7, where we have practically all earth roads, I am more than ever convinced that this type of road can be fairly well maintained by this system, even where subject to considerable heavy motor traffic.

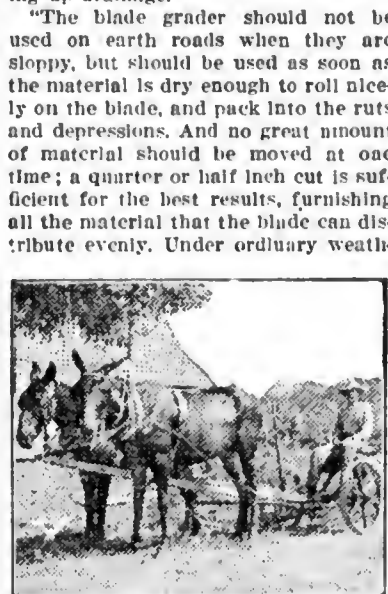

"A patrol section should not be more than six or seven miles in length and should be taken care of by one man with team. This man should be held responsible for the condition of his section at all times and should be required to devote all of his time to the work.

"The patrolman must have a good team, and the wagon box equipped with a dump bottom. The county should furnish a light two-horse blade grader, road plane, plow, scraper and necessary small tools, such as shovel, pick, bar, brush scythe, rake, etc.

"In spite of all the claims made for the road drag as a maintenance tool, we find the light blade grader or the road plane far superior to it, and we advocate the use of these tools entirely for road maintenance. We find that a road drag having no bearing except on the blade, has a tendency to gouge out the material in soft spots making them still deeper, and giving the road a bad, wavy surface, while the blade grader or the road plane, having a long wheel base or bearing surface, cuts only on the high spots and distributes the material in low places, building them up and giving the road a nice, smooth, driving surface. A blade grader should be so constructed that one man can drive the team and make all adjustments necessary while the machine is moving, as only one man is required on this work.

"An earth road with low crown and badly sodded shoulders cannot be properly maintained by the patrolman, but should be first trimmed up with a heavier outfit, cutting off and removing heavy sods, properly heaping up the crown, filling low places and opening up drainage.

"The blade grader should not be used on earth roads when they are sloppy, but should be used as soon as the material is dry enough to roll nicely on the blade, and pack into the ruts and depressions. And no great amount of material should be moved at one time; a quarter or half inch cut is sufficient for the best results, furnishing all the material that the blade can distribute evenly. Under ordinary weather

Patrolman Cutting Weeds Along Side of Road.

er conditions the material is in a fair condition to work with the grader for about three days after a rain, giving ample time for three full rounds of the section which should leave even a badly rutted road in fairly good condition. Be sure to always make the first round trip on the center of the road.

"Six inches of crown to a 24-foot driving surface is sufficient. Care should be taken that the roadbed is nicely rounded, and not dragged to a peak in the center or a large ridge of loose earth left there."

ROADS AID RURAL STUDENTS

Much Larger Percentage of Attendance Noted in Sections Where Highways Are Improved.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While it is true that various factors contribute to increase or reduce the attendance at schools in given sections of the country, it is worthy of comment that in the states having a high percentage of improved roads a much larger percentage of rural students enrolled regularly attend the schools than in the states having a small percentage of improved roads.

THIS is a topic we all hear now-a-days because so many people are inclined to exaggerate. Yet has any physician told you that we claimed unreasonable remedial properties for Fletcher's Castoria? Just ask them. We won't answer it ourselves, we know what the answer will be.

That it has all the virtues to-day that was claimed for it in its early days is to be found in its increased use, the recommendation by prominent physicians, and our assurance that its standard will be maintained.

Imitations are to be found in some stores and only because of the Castoria that Mr. Fletcher created. But it is not the genuine Castoria that Mr. Fletcher honestly advertised, honestly placed before the public and from which he honestly expects to receive his reward.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

BETTER LIVE STOCK CRUSADE

Nation-wide Campaign to Eliminate Scrub Sires From Breeding—Emblem Given Owner.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Better Sires—Better Stock."

This is the slogan of a national better-live-stock crusade, to get actively in motion October 1, that is announced by the United States department of agriculture, working in cooperation with the state agricultural colleges and other agencies interested in live-stock improvement. The campaign looks forward to the future food needs of this country's increasing population and results from long and careful observation of the live-stock industry in this country, and was planned after extensive consultation with specialists and breeders. The plan is to hasten the replacement of the multitude of scrub domestic animals in the United States with good purebred or high-grade stock, and also to improve the quality of purebreds themselves. The goal in view is greater efficiency in production.

Campus Virginia E—Yearly Production as Two-Year-Old: Milk, 8,131.2 Lbs.; Butterfat, 508.7 Lbs.

The campaign will be the first organized crusade in a large country to improve all live stock simultaneously. It will interfere in no way with any work in live-stock improvement now being conducted, but makes all the work more definite and effective by providing official recognition for progressive breeders.

The campaign will be supervised from the department of agriculture in Washington, and in each state by the state agricultural college. County agents and other field workers of the department of agriculture and of the state colleges will handle the campaign locally. Every live-stock owner actively co-operating and keeping and using none but purebred sires of good quality will be given an emblem as an official recognition of meritorious effort.

KEEP DAIRY UTENSILS CLEAN

This Precaution Should Be Observed Throughout Year, but Especially in Warm Weather.

Utensils that come in contact with milk or cream must be kept perfectly clean. This precaution should be observed throughout the year, but especially during the warm weather, says the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Wash them by first rinsing in cold water and then by using hot water and a brush. Washing powder suitable for use in the dairy should contain no grease. Ordinary sal-soda used in small amounts is a good dairy cleanser. After washing the utensils with hot water, rinse thoroughly with boiling water and place them where they will come in contact with the direct rays of the sun. This place should be free from flies.

In washing the large milk cans, be sure that the inside of the shoulder of the can is rubbed with the brush, as this is the most difficult part to clean.

LESSEN DANGER FROM FEVER

Diversity of Opinion on Advisability of Removing All Milk From Cow's Udder.

Opinion is not unanimous on the advisability of removing all the milk from the udder after the calf has drawn its first meal. It is urged by those who oppose the complete emptying of the bag that only a part should be removed. The belief is that as nature's plan is only to take a little away there is less danger from milk fever than when the bag is milked clean.

POULTRY FANCIERS EMPLOY EFFICIENT MEANS OF DISPOSING OF SURPLUS STOCK

Prize-Winning Fowls Spread Doctrine of Better Blood.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To keep his breeding birds in the public eye is the aim of every progressive breeder, as in this manner he attracts a following which either purchases his surplus breeding stock or else by word of mouth or other publicity advertises the fame and quality of this particular poultry, so that the ultimate sale of the fowl is effected. One of the greatest values of the fairs and poultry shows from the standpoint of the breeder is that they furnish opportunities of advertising his flock, comparing his birds with those of his associates, and profiting by the decisions of the judges. Many people attend poultry shows purely because of interest in feathered stock and without any immediate intention of purchasing breeding birds. However, the outstanding quality or superiority of certain fowl may be so impressed upon their minds that later on when they decide to make purchases they will remember the names of breeders whose fowl they saw at the shows and will patronize them.

What Beginner Can Learn. Attendance at the fall fairs and poultry shows is of particular importance to the beginner in the poultry-breeding business, as it shows him the fine points of standard-bred fowl; enables him to compare his birds with the birds of other breeders, and gets him in contact with successful poultrymen from whom he may learn many clever points of management which otherwise would involve long and costly experience.

Although the fall fairs and poultry shows are one of the best selling mediums for the poultryman who raises breeding stock, it is also advisable that he advertise judiciously in the poultry press as well as in reputable farm papers. The experience of prominent breeders has been that it is preferable to run small "ads" at regular intervals throughout the year rather than to insert a large advertisement only occasionally. The psychology of advertising is peculiar and unique in that management which pays in one instance may fail in another. Successful poultry advertising is largely a matter of individual accomplishment.

TIME FOR PREPARING SQUABS FOR MARKET

Birds in Best Condition When Feathered Under Wings.

Usually Killed by Cutting Arteries in Back Part of Roof of Mouth and Piercing Brain—Grade According to Quality.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Squabs are ready for market usually from 3½ to 4½ weeks of age and up to this time they are fed by their parents. They must be sent to market promptly, as the period during which they are in best condition rarely exceeds one week. According to the poultry specialists of the department, squabs are in good market condition when fully feathered under the wings, which is usually about the time they begin to leave the nest. If they are not killed at this time they soon lose their baby fat and their flesh begins to harden.

Catch the squabs to be marketed in the morning before they are fed by their parents, so that their crops will be empty. Squabs are usually killed in the same manner as poultry, by cutting the arteries in the back part of the roof of the mouth and piercing the brain, but if sent to market without plucking they are usually killed by wringing or breaking the neck. After they are stuck the feathers are immediately plucked clean, with the exception of the head, and the birds are cooled either by placing them in cold water or by hanging them in a cool place. The crop should be cut open and thoroughly cleaned if it contains any feed.

Squabs should be graded according to size and quality, as dark-colored and small squabs tend to lower the price paid for an entire shipment of mixed squabs. They are usually packed for shipment in a good supply of cracked ice, breasts up, with paraffin paper between each layer of ice and squabs.

As the period at which a squab is right for market is not over one week, it is necessary to have a good-sized flock to have over one dozen squabs ready for market at one time. A local market which will take any number of squabs is a great aid to the small producer. Where one has a small flock, it usually pays best to build it up until it is large enough to make good-sized shipments of squabs. This, however, requires a constant outlay without any return for some time.

The production of squabs from each pair of breeders varies from one or two to as high as ten or eleven pairs a year, but an average of from six to seven pairs is a fair estimate, although some squab breeders do better than this. Squabs usually sell at the highest prices during cold weather, as pigeons do not breed as freely during the winter as during the spring.

VALUABLE STOCK

In several counties of North Carolina more pure-bred live stock has been purchased during the past year at the higher prices which have prevailed than in any other year. Hogs were never so high, and yet hundreds of boys bought pure-bred pigs at high prices with the expectation of selling their offspring. Through the county agents many hundreds of pigs bred by the boys have been sold at good prices, and this is stimulating the extension of pure-bred hogs.

POULTRY NOTES

Small or dirty eggs should be used at home.

Subscribe for one or more good poultry papers.

Ship or deliver eggs at least twice or three times weekly.

The Asiatic breeds are: Brahma, Cochon and Langshan.

For general farm use American breeds are probably the best.

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages.

When taking eggs to market they should be protected from the sun's rays.

GIVE HELP TO FALLEN HORSE

First Unhitch Him and Allay Fears by Talking to Him—Provide Suitable Footing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When a horse falls in harness he almost immediately struggles to regain his feet. A strong, healthy horse will not remain down voluntarily, but in his efforts to rise he may become frightened. If the driver will give the right kind of first aid he can prevent serious injury to the animal.

Held down by the harness the horse seldom has sufficient freedom to rise to his feet, though enough to struggle and injure himself by pounding his head on the ground. Accordingly the driver should calm the horse first by speaking in a reassuring tone and, by placing his knees upon the animal's neck just back of the ears, endeavor to prevent injury from struggling or from bruising his head. An intelligent horse quickly learns to place great confidence in the voice of a good driver.

The traces and breeching straps should be unfastened and the vehicle rolled back from the fallen animal. If the horse is in a double hitch, the traces and yoke strap should be unfastened and the pole, vehicle, and working mate moved a short distance away. An injured horse will then regain his feet readily if he has suitable footing. In case the ground is icy, scatter some fine sand, sawdust, or straw under and in front of him. If nothing of this kind is available, spread a blanket or burlap haggling on the pavement to give him better footing as he attempts to stand.

In case the horse needs more help and encouragement, and especially if he lies on his side, roll him on to his chest, with the hind legs under the belly. Then work both front legs forward until the feet are firmly on the ground and knees flexed. If after repeated efforts and good footing he continues to fall back upon the ground there is possibly some injury to the hind parts, such as a fracture of the hip or leg, which should be examined by a qualified veterinarian.

In all efforts to assist a fallen horse do not forget that in rising to his feet he raises the head and fore parts first. This is directly opposite to the habit of the cow, which elevates the hind parts first.

Injuries to horses are common during the winter months in cities where snow becomes packed and forms an icy coating on the pavement. In most cities above the frost belt there are times when pavements are slippery.

Asphalt is especially troublesome and when covered by a very light sleet or snow makes a very treacherous footing for horses. The milkman or hiker, who drove upon a clean pavement the night before, may find the streets at 4 a. m. so nearly impassable from a coat of smooth ice as to delay his deliveries very greatly or even prevent them entirely.

In country districts horses remain sharp or rough shod for a considerable time. But if they are driven much on city streets paved with stone, cement, or asphalt, from which the snow has been removed, their shoes quickly become smooth and it is difficult for the horses to keep their feet.

When the front feet slip backward a horse is likely to fall and injure his knees, while side slipping generally causes him to come down broadside. Shoeing with rubber pads, or the use of emergency appliances may lessen the chance of slipping, but as there is always the possibility of a horse falling, even when well shod, careful driving and precautions against overloading are important additional means for reducing these accidents and injuries to a minimum.
